

In honour of International Women's Day, Squamish Terminals is pleased to recognize the talented and dedicated team of women that work at Squamish Terminals and on the waterfront.

The team of women that work at Squamish Terminals...

- are skilled in a variety of operations and represent 28% of the Squamish Terminals' workforce... although the waterfront industry is changing, today this represents a higher percentage than the waterfront industry as a whole; and
- hold positions from non-traditional occupations to management, including the following disciplines: heavy equipment operator, safety, purchasing, inventory, security, logistics, accounting, marketing and administration.

Majority of the workforce at Squamish Terminals are represented by the International Longshore and Warehouse Union (ILWU) and we appreciate their support.

Squamish Terminals is a deep-water, break-bulk terminal located at the north end of Howe Sound. Since 1972 we have been efficiently handling forestry, steel and special project cargo for loading to or from ocean vessels, barges, trucks and rail. In 2012 we are celebrating 40 years in business!
